Exhibition: Derrick Adams at Museum of Arts and Design

Much of Derrick Adams's work has dealt with reanimating black history by finding ways to revise and remake it via performances, collages, videos, and sound pieces. His Museum of Arts and Design exhibition, titled "Sanctuary," looks back to the mid-20th century. With The Negro Motorist Green Book, a guidebook intended to help black American travelers find safe spaces, in mind, Adams has created a new series of mixed-media collages, sculptures, and assemblages. Though the book was initially written for a Jim Crow-era audience, Adams sees it as having importance today, when laws and regulations continue to affect the everyday lives of black Americans. Museum of Arts and Design, 2 Columbus Circle, 10 a.m.–9 p.m.
